

BRITISH CHANCELLOR PRAISES CHAMBERLAIN

Lloyd George Pays High Tribute to Departed Unionist

Says He Had a Genuine Enthusiasm for Social Reform, and the Home Rule Schism Made Great Britain the Poorer.

(Special Cable Despatch to The Globe.) London, July 3.—Among the noblest tributes to the late Joseph Chamberlain was one paid by Mr. Lloyd George, who said to your correspondent: "I always had a profound admiration for Chamberlain's great powers and deep respect for his character. He was a man of immense personal force, quite fearless and capable of inspiring millions with faith in great ideas and principles and the courage to fight for them. He had a genuine enthusiasm for social reform. I have always been a believer in the sincerity of his desire to improve the condition of the masses of the people. In my judgment, but for one fatal diversion of his energies caused by the home rule schism, he would have been the greatest democratic statesman this country has ever produced but for the events of 1886 and the loss of Chamberlain to Liberalism, we would, I believe, be living to-day in a happier, stronger Britain, as a result of the courageous legislation inspired by Chamberlain's zeal for social reform.

An Unfortunate Alliance.

"For all the splendor of his career, my feeling is now that it closed as one of sadness. I think of what might have been. I believe that the attitude of his mind on many questions remained radical to the end, but his alliance with the Tory party made it impossible for him to give effect to his genuine instincts as a reformer. As a speaker, Chamberlain had wonderful gifts. I would not call him an orator, but he could stir great audiences as few men can, and he was the most consummate of Parliamentarians. For dramatic purposes, his style of interest I have seen nothing in the House of Commons to match the long and tremendous duel between Chamberlain and Gladstone over home rule in the session of 1883."

LATE ARCHDUKE PRIZED AN AMERICAN TIP

ONE OF HIS PROUDEST POSSESSIONS WAS A SWISS 100-FRANC BANKNOTE.

(Special Cable Despatch to The Globe.) Geneva, July 3.—One of the proudest possessions of the murdered Archduke Francis Ferdinand was a Swiss banknote of one hundred francs received as a tip from an American. The Archduke is an accomplished Alpinist and chamois hunter, and had a shooting lodge at Blumbachthal in the Tyrolean Alps, where he was accustomed to rough it. On several occasions he was mistaken for a guide. Once in the neighborhood of Bernina pass he came upon a party of three Americans who were in the mountains and conducted them to a place whence they could continue their journey safely. One of the party handed the Archduke a banknote in return for the trip taken. The Archduke accepted it, and had the note framed.

DEADLOCK IN ITALY'S PARLIAMENT IS BROKEN

SOCIALISTS AGREE TO COMPROMISE PROPOSED BY SIGNOR CARCANO.

(Canadian Press Despatch.) Rome, July 3.—The Parliamentary deadlock caused by the obstruction of the Socialists against new taxes which are urgently needed to make up the Budget deficit was removed last night by the acceptance by a vote of 209 to 40 of a compromise proposed by the President of the Chamber of Deputies, Signor Carcano, and approved by the Government. The compromise provides that the new taxation, the burden of which the Socialists claimed would rest mostly on the poor, shall be applied by Royal decree until June 30, 1915, the entire financial question meanwhile being thrashed out in November, when the Government will undertake to introduce in Parliament an elaborate plan for fiscal reform based on an income tax.

THE HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER, Chicago, Ill.

Dangers of Infection (continued).—After discussing this subject from the general standpoint in the last paper I will give you a casual illustration of the far-reaching character and dangerous nature of typhoid infection.

Your neighbor living ten rods away is a good neighbor. He is honest and industrious. His wife makes excellent butter, and it always sells for good prices. Your own place is a strictly sanitary home. Your barnyard is kept clean, and flies are not allowed a breeding place; your privy is built according to plans and specifications furnished free by the Department of Agriculture at Washington. Every rod of neighbor has a vile, upon privy vault, and the manure from his barnyard is removed once a year. He is himself what is known as a sanitary typhoid, although never seriously ill. The flies from his place, heavily laden with typhoid germs, come to your home; one of them alights upon the butter and leaves a trail of germs which are eaten by your wife, who is very tired and not very well. Nine days later she is stricken with typhoid fever. The meantime, however, you have decided to send a box of fruit and fresh vegetables to your son a hundred miles away at college. Your neighbor, upon seeing you, and as he loves your boy, wants to put in a few apples from a tree in his own yard, of which the boy has always been fond. While at home he goes to the privy, and while there he picks up a few worms, picks the apples. One of them is bruised, and the skin broken, and at once a dozen flies are at the place sucking the sweet juice, and leaving thousands of typhoid germs.

A couple of weeks later, when you are almost distracted with fear for your sick wife, you get a letter from the principal of the college, and a half dozen other students with whom he shared his fruit and fresh vegetables have been stricken with typhoid. It is not until the college officials send a well-trained inspector to your farm, which he finds sanitary, does the true source of infection appear. He questions you closely, and then he suggests that you have a superficial inspection there shows the possibilities, but only through what is called a "Widal Reaction" was the true source of the infection revealed. The trained inspector suspected the neighbor, and procured a culture of the germs from his urine and also from a few rods of blood.

I would suggest that you have a sanitary cesspool, privy vault, etc., and how to protect your wells. Dear Doctor.—We moved to this State last summer and were troubled with what is commonly called hives all through the summer. This year they are beginning to bother us again, and threaten to be just as bad as ever. Some one has a doctor prescribed common baking soda, which cured them, but it does not seem to do any good here. We thought it was the change of climate last year, but I don't think we should have them so much now if that was the cause. I should be ever so grateful if you could tell me of something that would help them or something that would stop the awful itching. They keep us awake at night and are very disagreeable for us. The whole family have them, so I don't think our blood is out of order.—T. E.

There are several reliable home treatments for hives, and you should treat them in the best way it will be necessary for you to know that indigestion is the most frequent cause. By keeping the digestive organs in good condition and having a free movement of the bowels, you will believe you will be able to overcome the difficulty quite readily. Certain articles of diet are almost sure to bring on an attack of the hives in susceptible persons. These include fish, clams, lobsters, etc., also oatmeal, buckwheat cakes, acid fruits and cucumbers. Remove any source of irritation in the digestive canal by employing a simple diet for a few days, as bread and milk, for instance. A dose of castor oil, one teaspoonful for children and a tablespoonful for adults, may sometimes do good. The doctor who prescribed a saturated solution of common baking soda was right. Equal parts of alcohol or vinegar and water to relieve the itching is also a common and valuable remedy. When the hives are general a bath consisting of soda and starch is one of the most useful treatments. It is prepared by dissolving half a cupful of boiled starch and one tablespoonful of baking soda in one gallon of water. These baths should be as prolonged as possible without chilling. Witch-hazel is also considered a very valuable home remedy for an itching skin. These hives are in some instances. As a rule, however, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar in a tumblerful of cold water, taken every morning before breakfast for a few days, will effect a complete cure.

All readers of this publication are at liberty at all times to write for information pertaining to the subject of hives. Address: Home Health Club, 5,629 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Ill., U.S.A., with name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

CROPS MUCH IMPROVED BY THE RECENT RAINS

have been ideal, and the several crops have made such headway that unless some unfortunate drawback arises, there will be an abundant harvest of new and old grain. Wheat is particularly good, and with the exception of a slight area which was winter-killed, should show an abundant field. The plant is well headed out, and although the heads are still in the milk state, the heads will be well filled. The only immediate fear is that rust may develop with the recent continuous rains, but when the weather prevails during the month harvesting will be well under way before August. In fact, the wheat is ahead of the timothy crop in some places.

The usual average of barley has been sown, and this too is exceptionally fine. The plant is heading out, and will harvest early. There are some of the finest fields in Colborne township, ever seen anywhere. Oats were all excellent, and the heads were early sown are of a good dark color and heading out. Some farmers fear damage through falling under excessive rainfalls. Corn is showing up well, although somewhat retarded by the cold, backward spring is making great headway. The provincial farmer has sown heavily in this crop to make sure of sufficient stock feed, and the corn is looking the part winter.

The hay crop is good in some parts, and lighter in others. Although reported much more plentiful than last year, the farmer finds it more difficult to get the crop coming up, attributable to the thin crop of last season. Some Lucerne clover has been cut and the growth pronounced excellent, but there is a fear of mildew in the way. The weather brightens quickly. Roots have germinated well, and while it is rather premature to state that potatoes will be abundant, the indications are extremely encouraging. The farmers have had many crops

ONTARIO NEEDS ROWELL, SAYS KINGSTON STANDARD

DISAGREES WITH HIS POLICIES, BUT WANTS HIM TO REMAIN IN POLITICS.

(Special Despatch to The Globe.) Kingston, July 3.—The Daily Standard (Independent Conservative) which supported the Whitney Government in the election, to-day published an editorial entitled "Mr. Rowell Should Not Retire." The editorial, while criticizing his policy, speaks highly of Mr. Rowell's qualities. The editorial follows in part: "Many people are wondering and questioning what Mr. Rowell will do, now that he has been so decisively defeated. For our own part there is one thing we hope he will not do, namely, withdraw from public life, for we think not only the Liberal party but the whole Province would be the worse for his retirement. We have many clean and able men in public life in the Province at the present time, and Mr. Rowell is among the number. But though we have many such men we have even as it is too few rather than too many. Mr. Rowell drop out now. For that matter, indeed, we think Sir James Whitney and his colleagues would join us in this expressed wish, since, conducting a clean Government themselves, we feel sure they would prefer as opponents of their clean, worthy men like Mr. Rowell rather than men of smaller mental calibre and of doubtful character."

HOUSE IN QUANDARY: BUSINESS SUSPENDED

REF. LEVY OF NEW YORK PLACED U.S. LEGISLATORS IN CURIOUS FLIGHT.

(Special Despatch to The Globe.) Washington, July 3.—The House to-day suddenly discovered itself in a position where it must either adjourn its day session or submit to a record vote on the proposition of a final adjournment on July 15 next. Representative Jefferson Levy of New York furnished the House with its happy predicament. He is author of a resolution designed to bring the session to an end the middle of July. He thinks the statesmen have been here long enough, and he believes there is no crying demand for further anti-trust agitation. He called up his resolution. Democratic leader Underwood moved that it be laid on the table. Republican leader Mann asked a division. There was no quorum present. Mr. Underwood moved an adjournment. The business of the day was suspended. There will be no meeting of the House until Monday.
