STORIES FROM THE SCENE OF WAR

TERRITORIAL BATTERY MADE A NEW RECORD

Quick Transportation of Heavy Guns—War Office Will Not Give All Details

A recent correspondence of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, which reached London, states that a battery of heavy guns has been successfully transported to the front by means of a special arrangement made by the War Office. The guns were loaded on special railway cars and transported to the front in a matter of hours. This was a significant achievement for the Canadian forces and an indication of their readiness to engage in combat.

ENLISTMENT HAS BEGUN

The Canadian government has begun enlisting for the war effort. Interested individuals are encouraged to visit local recruitment centers to sign up. The government has promised to provide training and support to all new recruits.

CLEARING BATHTUBS AT THE FRONT

One of the major challenges facing the Allied forces on the Western Front is the sheer volume of water required for daily hygiene and sanitation. As a result, the Allies have established a network of clearing stations to supply baths and hot water to the troops. These stations are staffed by local civilians and operate with the cooperation of the local authorities.

British Merry Weather—No More Troubles

The British government has declared that the weather in the British Isles will continue to be pleasant and sunny. This is in contrast to recent reports of stormy weather, which have caused discomfort and even casualties among the troops.

GERMAN AND FRENCH TREATMENT OF TOURISTS

A special section of the newspaper devoted to the treatment of tourists by the German and French war effort. The article highlights the efforts made by both nations to ensure the comfort and safety of tourists visiting their cities.

GERMANY'S REAL PERIL IS INTERNAL REVOLUTION

The article asserts that Germany's real peril is internal revolution, as the government is facing challenges from within. It highlights the growing unrest among the German people, who are dissatisfied with the government's policies.

Every Eye is Straining Seawards

In these days of waiting, there's no un-British frenzy, and the real strength of Canada is shown by the way in which she goes about her work.

Clearing Bathrooms at the Front

One of the major challenges facing the Allied forces on the Western Front is the sheer volume of water required for daily hygiene and sanitation. As a result, the Allies have established a network of clearing stations to supply baths and hot water to the troops. These stations are staffed by local civilians and operate with the cooperation of the local authorities.

Summer Blouses

High-class summer styles, the damask of the season, are available at all stores. They are light and comfortable, and are a perfect choice for the warmer months.

Wash Goods

Soaps, towels, and other wash goods are essential for maintaining personal hygiene. They are available at all stores and are a must-have for anyone visiting the front.

Heavy Price Reductions in Hosiery Sale

A special section of the newspaper devoted to the sale of hosiery. The article highlights the significant price reductions on various styles of hosiery, making them more affordable for the average consumer.

Expeditionary Corps

The Expeditionary Corps is an international military force consisting of volunteers from various countries. It was established to support the Allied forces in the war effort.

A New Weapon: The Zeppelin

The zeppelin, a new weapon, has been developed by the Allies and is expected to play a significant role in the war. It is a large, gas-filled balloon with a gondola at the front for carrying passengers or cargo.

Germany's Real Peril Is Internal Revolution

In this article, the author argues that Germany's real peril is internal revolution, as the government is facing challenges from within. The author highlights the growing unrest among the German people, who are dissatisfied with the government's policies.

The Simpson Company Limited

An advertisement for the Simpson Company Limited. The company is offering a range of products, including clothing, shoes, and other accessories, at discounted prices.

FROM THE FRONT

A special section of the newspaper devoted to the war effort. The article highlights the various fronts of the war and the challenges faced by the Allied forces.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.